

COURT EXTENDS SCHOOL AID

Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

SUPERINTENDENT TODHUNTER of the state penal system in a speech at Little Rock last week-end defended Arkansas' use of trusty guards at the penitentiary farms. If Todhunter is going around spouting off his personal opinions, he is embarrassing the Futrell administration and something ought to be done about it. And if his opinions happen in fact to be the unofficial sentiment around the state house, then it amounts to a betrayal of the understanding we had in the last election—and that's a matter this county's senator and representatives ought to do something about when the legislature meets in January.

Test of Loyalty Is Sermon Theme by Rev. Harrison

New Pastor Makes First Appearance at Methodist Church

A CITY WIDE-MEET

Baptists and Presbyterians Join in Sunday Night Service

"The Test of Loyalty," was the subject of the sermon by the new pastor of First Methodist church, the Rev. Fred R. Harrison, at the 11 o'clock service Sunday. The text was Christ's question to Simon Peter, "Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou Me?" found in St. John 21:15.

In this first message to his congregation, the pastor brought out the fact that loyalty is the foundation of the Christian religion. Christ does not appeal to our instinct of fear, nor does He base His religion upon self-interest. Jesus built His religion upon the loyalty of people to Him. Christ requires personal loyalty. Christ wants followers in whom loyalty to Himself is the master passion of their life. Hence loyalty is the distinctive mark of discipleship.

Loyalty to Christ
This loyalty, the pastor stated, is a loyalty not to a dogma nor to a creed but to a Person—the Christ of the New Testament. And thus He invites our faith, wins our love, calls forth our obedience, inspires our service and is the object of our loyalty.

As a final point it was stated that the loyalty upon which Christianity rests is not a dumb or silent loyalty, but one of action which expresses itself in definite ways. Loyalty to Christ will acknowledge all His claims. Christ will accept no divided allegiance nor halfhearted service. This loyalty will accept His gift of life—abundant life here and eternal life hereafter. It will obey Christ's demands. The most attractive and effective life known to man is the life that obeys Jesus Christ. Active loyalty will proclaim Christ's message. And this message has the power to catch and change the heart of the sinner, win the mind of the scholar and satisfy the soul of the saint. And in the last place, loyalty to Christ will support His work. The building of the Kingdom of God is our first concern and interest. If we fail here, no other success matters. "Lovest thou Me?" was the first and last question of Christ to His disciples and it is His first and last question to men today.

Joint Night Service
At the evening service at 7:30 o'clock, the congregations of the First Baptist and First Presbyterian churches worshipped with the Methodists in welcome to the new pastor. The Rev. Wallace R. Rogers, First Baptist pastor, led the opening prayer, and the Rev. Thomas Brewster, First Presbyterian, gave the invocation.

Business to Join President in His New Deal Policies

Roosevelt Reaches Warm Springs, Ga., for Thanksgiving Day

EXUDES CONFIDENCE

Surveying November Election Results, Business "Comes Across"

WARM SPRINGS, Ga.—(AP)—With the pronouncement to the nation that all is well and the New Deal is going ahead on its present course, particularly for cheaper power, President Roosevelt settled down here Monday for his annual Thanksgiving day visit.

Traveling across the Southland Sunday after his inspection of the Tennessee valley power and land development, Roosevelt in two significant talks declared the New Deal is permanent, and suggested co-operation.

He stated his confidence that "We are coming back." He asserted that the experiment for cheap power and human rehabilitation in the Tennessee valley is to be copied in every state.

Business Joins F. D. R.
WASHINGTON—(AP)—Business and the administration were definitely united over the week-end in a mighty effort to produce recovery, while labor looked on skeptically and wondered.

After consulting Donald Richberg, the Roosevelt recovery co-ordinator, and James A. Moffett, head of the Housing Administration, Henry I. Harriman, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, asserted that "for the first time since the depression began business is really ready to go ahead."

"And business is rarin' to go," he added. Meanwhile, at the headquarters of the American Federation of Labor, William Green, president of that organization, pondered the meaning of the new alignment; termed it a "complete about-face on the part of big business" and reserved his opinion as to what it pointed to.

While Chamber officials had said that labor was welcome to co-operate, Green asserted that "there hasn't been an opportunity for co-operation because the Chamber of Commerce assumes such an antagonistic attitude toward labor, and especially toward section 7-A."

It became apparent that while the business leaders are reluctant to exclude labor definitely from the partnership, they see little possibility for effective co-operation, by reason of the fact that the objectives of the two groups are in almost direct opposition.

30-Hour Week Issue
Foremost among the issues involved is labor's insistence upon a 30-hour week made mandatory by statute. The Chamber of Commerce and other business organizations are ready to fight such legislation.

The Chamber during the day appointed a special committee to take charge of its co-operative work, headed by Silas H. Strawn, consistent foe of Roosevelt policies, and the heads of a half dozen firms ranging from agriculture, through industry to banking.

Harriman, exuding confidence that business was now entering a new era of "realism" and leaving behind one of "readjustment," said there was "no difference of opinion" between himself and Richberg.

"Both of us think that the one all-important thing is to get men to work and stop calling names," Moffett, in addition to a private conference with Harriman, addressed a meeting of the Chamber's Board of Directors. He strongly urged that business take the initiative in getting the program he is directing into effect as a means of increasing employment and industrial activity.

"If the fullest use is made of the possibilities of modernizing and building homes within the next year there should be no reason why at least $1,500,000,000 could not be put into each of these efforts, with the employment of 3,000,000 men, since men at work on building jobs put others to work supplying materials."

Other Groups to Join
At the Chamber's offices, it was said that the appointment of committees by similar organizations—the National Association of American Manufacturers, the National Industrial Conference Board, the Rurality Goods Committee under the NRA code for heavy industry—was expected momentarily.

Kidnapers Trapped, Beaten

Sprawled on the floor, thoroughly beaten, these three kidnap plotters learned how Connecticut treats would-be abductors. Police, tipped off that the kidnaping of Robert Westhelm, 12, was planned, were hidden in the home of his father, Gustave Westhelm, wealthy steamship broker, of Darien, when the thugs entered. In the battle that ensued, Joseph Gord, left, was slugged with a gun butt, shown broken near his head; and John Collins, right, and Edgar LaRose, center, were overpowered when they tried to shoot their way out. Three other suspects were captured later.

Recount in Three Counties Refused

Judge Henry Rules Complaint in Hempstead Was Filed Too Late

HAMBURG, Ark.—(AP)—Circuit Judge Patrick Henry Saturday overruled a petition for a recount of votes cast in Clark, Nevada, Union, Hempstead, LaFayette and Ouachita counties in the August 28 democratic primary following which Tiltman B. Parks was certified as the seventh district congressional nominee.

In overruling the petition Judge Henry said he should lend every assistance to the taking of evidence in support of the contest of Wade Kilchens, Magnolia, who is contesting Parks' nomination, but could not allow the petition because it was filed too late. Judge Henry explained that the statute requires that petitions are in the nature of a complaint and must be filed within 20 days of the election.

Attorney Rufus Wilson argued that he could prove not only that the votes set forth in the original complaint had been switched but that 200 votes were changed in Hempstead and 175 in Lafayette county.

Depositions from Clark and Calhoun counties were introduced Saturday. One from Calhoun county was that of E. M. Bailey, telephone exchange manager, regarding calls from M. H. Ritchie and W. L. Furlow to Tiltman Parks at Camden, and to Sheriff John C. Riley at Hamburg.

The depositions from Clark county concerned the vote and recount in Ward 3 and ward 5. It was charged that a recount in ward 3 changed the result from Kilchens 22 and Parks 91 to Kilchens 30 and Parks 83 and the recount in ward 5 showed a gain of 56 for Kilchens and a like loss for Parks.

It was announced that depositions would be taken at Camden Monday and that beginning Tuesday 35 depositions would be taken at Gurdin. It was announced also that the plaintiff expected to rest by noon Friday.

Court adjourned Saturday to reconvene at 10 o'clock next Friday morning.

Stephens to Take $300 Expense Item

But Will Continue Salary Proper at $1,800 Another Two Years

An echo from the general election, when the salary-reduction act which he supported against the opposition of other county officials, went down to defeat, was seen in the announcement Monday by County Judge H. M. Stephens that he would accept $300 a year expense money voted him by the Quorum Court last week, but would continue his salary as the $1,800 pledge figure.

The judge's statement, which declined to comment on the election, was as follows: "In the 1932 campaign I pledged the voters of Hempstead county to serve them as county judge at a salary of $1,800 a year, although the law fixes this at $3,000."

"Later on in the campaign the Taxpayers League drew up a proposed salary schedule for candidates for county offices, fixing the judge's compensation at the $1,800 figure I originated, plus $25 a month for expenses."

"I have served practically two years without this expense money, and at $1,200 a year less salary than allowed by law. But feeling that the voters and taxpayers do not expect me to carry the entire burden of retrenchment I asked the Quorum Court session November 12 to allow me the $300-a-year expense money as stated in my pledge as a candidate."

"The Quorum Court unanimously granted it, without which consent I would not have taken it."

"This puts me on record before the taxpayers as having served as their county judge the past two years at a salary of $1,800 a year, and $300 a year expense money—and I will adhere to the same policy during the years 1935-36."

Authorities Spirit Away Prisoners to Forestall Violence

CLIFTON FORGE, Va.—(AP)—The bodies of two young girls, their skulls crushed, were found in a woods near here Monday by a searching party, and shortly afterward the authorities arrested three negroes and rushed them to Roanoke for safe-keeping.

The children, Alice B. Hill, 13, and Ellen Hill, 9, had been missing since Sunday night after they visited a farm on which one of the arrested negroes lived.

Coroner Louis Houff said the girls died of fractured skulls, and declared the older girl had been criminally attacked.

Alderman Lacking Hunt License Fined

L. A. Keith Draws Suspended Penalty of 10 in Municipal Court

Alderman L. A. Keith pleaded guilty Monday in municipal court to a charge of hunting ducks without obtaining a license and was fined $10. The fine, however, was suspended on motion of Deputy Prosecuting Attorney Pat Casey.

A total of $100 was assessed against 10 persons for drunkenness. Fines of $10 each were suspended against four defendants. They were: T. E. Minner, George Wiggins, George Jones and Cramp Hill.

Drunkenness charges against six other defendants in which they either forfeited $10 cash bonds or were fined are as follows: Count Hieghorn, Arthur Milus, Watson Rhodes, Walter Anderson, Hugh Turner and Jeff Shope.

Results of other cases: Elbert Young, petit larceny; fined $10 and sentence to a day in jail. Earl Nelson, simple assault; forfeited $10 cash bond.

Troy Boles, disturbing the peace; forfeited $10 cash bond. John Taylor waived preliminary hearing and was bound over to the grand jury under $300 bond on charges of removing and disposing of cotton subject to a lien. The cotton was taken from the Steve Carrigan farm.

A charge of rape against Grover Smith, negro, was continued until November 26. He was placed under $500 bond.

Charges of drunkenness and disturbing the peace were dismissed against Jordan Lowe.

Burglary and grand larceny charges against Albert Jones were continued until November 26.

Frank Charles, reckless driving; dismissed by Pat Casey deputy prosecutor.

"Ladies Night" to Be Held on Friday

Rotary Club Postpones Program Scheduled for Tuesday Night

The annual ladies' night program of Hope Rotary club, scheduled for Tuesday night, has been postponed until Friday night, the committee announced Monday.

The prospect of bad weather, and inability of several members to attend on the Tuesday date, made postponement advisable.

This year's program will be held outdoors, with a hay-ride and winter-meat.

90% of Short Term Farm Loans Repaid

St. Louis Bank Reflects Farm Improvement in Arkansas

Repayments have already been received on more than 90 per cent of the short-term loans made this season to farmers in the Sixth Farm Credit District for the production of cotton and discounted by the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of St. Louis.

In this fact, Joseph R. Cosgrove, president of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank, sees another indication of improved agricultural conditions among farmers of Illinois, Missouri, and Arkansas, the three states comprising the Sixth District.

Mr. Cosgrove reports that the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank has discounted cotton loans for a total of $3,170,074, of which only $257,880 remains unpaid, with a large part of this sum not yet due.

The Federal Intermediate Credit Bank does not make loans direct to farmers but discounts agricultural production paper for production credit associations, agricultural credit corporations, banks, and other primary lending agencies.

The newly organized production credit associations established under authority of the Farm Credit Act passed by congress last year have loaned $1,878,855 to farmers of this district for the production of cotton. Of this amount, $1,690,991, or 90 per cent has already been repaid.

Cotton loans made by agricultural credit corporations total $1,291,218, of which 94.6 per cent has been repaid. Mr. Cosgrove pointed out that these loans are not made from Federal funds but from funds obtained through the sale of Intermediate Credit Bank debentures to the investing public.

Mrs. M. E. Woodul Dies at Age of 83

Funeral Monday Afternoon, With Burial at Oak Grove Church

Mrs. M. E. Woodul, 83, native of Hempstead county, died early Monday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. F. Irwin, 715 West Division street. Mrs. Woodul had been seriously ill since last Thursday. A short funeral service was to be held at 1:30 o'clock Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Irwin. The body will then be removed to Oak Grove church, seven miles east of Hope, for the remainder of the service. The Rev. Fred R. Harrison, pastor of First Methodist church, will be in charge. Burial will be in Oak Grove cemetery.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. C. F. Irwin, and Mrs. Ed Collier of Hope. A son, J. H. Woodul of Shreveport, also survives.

Duck Threatened With Extinction

Armistice on Hunting Advocated as Fowl Disappears This Year

WASHINGTON—(AP)—An armistice for the wild duck was in prospect Sunday as officials studied means of preventing America's waterfowl from following the Buffalo into extinction. Alarming reports of drastic reductions in the duck population came from the nation's flyways as half-frozen ducks—hunters waited in vain for the south-bound flights to arrive.

Jay N. Ravling, chief of the Biological Survey, just back from a nationwide survey of the situation, reported the government hoped to restore 1,000,000 acres of marginal lands in the central plains to their original wild state before the next breeding season. This program, Ravling said, would help duck propagation next year, but he said other and more drastic steps may be required.

Its Anti-Refunding Ruling Is Reversed by Supreme Court

New Decision Will Permit Resumption of Act 28 Refunding

REVERSE JUDGMENT

Cheese Damage Action Against Hope A. & P. Grocery Thrown Out

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—Reversing its own decision of two weeks ago the Arkansas Supreme Court Monday held that school district electors could vote a continuous millage tax for bond refunding purposes, thus paving the way for the resumption of the school bond refunding program.

The court had previously held that Act 28 prohibited a continuous levy except where new bonds were voted and actual cash was paid into the district's treasury from the sale of bonds. The court said it had been properly shown that the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. had been negligent in handling some cheese which was sold to the parent of Norma Jean G. Williams, at Hope, and the court reversed the verdict against the company.

The case was appealed from Hempstead circuit. It was alleged that the children were made ill from cheese purchased from the A. & P. company. Other cases included the Farmersville State Bank vs. John W. Harmon and T. L. Grubbs, Union chancery, reversed.

Todhunter Favors Trusty Guard Use

Blames Publicity for Criticism of State Parole Procedure

LITTLE ROCK—The Arkansas parole system and the custom of using trusty guards at the prison farms were championed over the week-end by Supt. S. L. Todhunter in an address before the Breakfast Club of the Y. M. C. A.

Not more than 10 convicts out of a maximum of 200 paroled at one time ever violate their paroles or cause the penal system any trouble, he said. The parole system, however, causes more "noise" and attract more attention, he pointed out, than the 190 well behaved ones.

"The parole system as it is practiced in Arkansas is an inducement for a convict to behave himself and go straight," the prison superintendent declared.

Trusty guards are asier to supervise than hired guards, he said, and do much better work on the whole.

Pointing out that the Eastern prison provide baseball and football for their inmates, a member of the club asked Superintendent Todhunter what type of recreation is provided for Arkansas convicts.

He explained that whereas convicts in the East are confined to their cells or do their work inside, the convicts in Arkansas spend 10 to 12 hours a day at work in the fields and get sufficient fresh air and exercise in that manner.

The superintendent was kept for an hour after the regular breakfast meeting period, answering questions by club members and relating incidents that have occurred at the prison farms.

Delay Setting of Shank's Execution

Futrell Resets Maguire Case—Possibility of War Shell-Shock

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—Governor Futrell said Monday he would not set a new date for the electrocution of Jack J. Shank, condemned Akron (Ohio) attorney, until there was a determination of the question involving the accused quadruple slayer's rights to a sanity hearing.

The governor reset for December 28 the date for the electrocution of Bill Maguire, to permit attorneys time to obtain Maguire's war record, which they told the governor would reveal that the condemned man had been a shell-shock victim.

Maguire, convicted of the slaying of a filling station operator here, was scheduled to die next Friday.

Rise in Health Argued Against Insurance.

In view of the increasing interest in sickness insurance, and the prospect that this subject will be considered for national adoption at the next session of Congress, Dr. Fishbein has written three articles in which he presents the attitude of the medical profession on this important topic. This is the first.

So widespread has become the discussion regarding sickness insurance that it is expected to come up for consideration even in the next session of Congress, as part possibly of the New Deal program for the national welfare.

Despite the arguments that have been presented in favor of health insurance, however, the medical profession generally, as represented by the American Medical Association, believes that such measure would bring no improvement in sickness benefits over what is afforded to all classes today.

Medicine today costs more than it used to cost, but it is worth a great deal more. Through the advancement of modern scientific medicine, the expectancy of life at birth has moved up from 33 years to almost 60 years. Moreover there has been increased human happiness through increased health.

Infant mortality rates have been cut down so that today only from 50 to 70 babies out of 1000 die in the first year of life, instead of from 250 to 350 out of 1000, which was the rate around 1850.

Those who have been studying the problems of medical care have found that the biggest difficulty today is the question of distribution. Not everyone can afford large medical bills.

By its elimination of a good deal of serious illness, medicine has wiped out the fear of disease and it is, therefore, exceedingly difficult to make people save against disease. Death they know is certain, but on disease many of them are willing to gamble.

Many foreign countries have systems of sickness insurance controlled by the state. The English and German systems are examples.

In brief, these provide that workers who receive less than a certain sum of money annually shall have set aside from their wages a certain amount. The employer and the state also contribute. This money is then made available for the care of most ordinary illnesses.

Ninety per cent of the conditions for which most patients consult doctors can be diagnosed and treated by a good general practitioner with only the amount of equipment he can carry in a handbag. Most people do not worry much about paying for that kind of sickness.

In this country the bills that disturb them are those for the major illnesses, and for surgical operations. Nevertheless in Great Britain the sickness insurance system does not provide for these major illnesses but only for general medical service.

It has been a tradition of medicine that it always gives its service to the poor without question. Every year the doctors of this country give many millions of dollars' worth of service for the poor, getting in return for it only the experience and such prestige as comes from having one's name on the staff of a great charity hospital.

A BOOK A DAY

By BRUCE CATTION

This Verse Can Be Compared With Any—New Book by Miss Millay—Full of Fine Poetry

Anyone who wishes to read poetry that is in the finest tradition of English verse—poetry that will be read, and that will create bright images and open new vistas to the imagination, long after this generation is gone—would do well to invest in a copy of "Wine From These Grapes," a new collection of poems by Edna St. Vincent Millay.

In this slim little book, Miss Millay once again demonstrates her right to a place among the great poets. Her lyrics have a way of making other contemporary songsters sound overwrought and amateurish; her sonnets—and these is a noble sequence in this book, under the meaning "Epitaph for the Race of Man"—can stand comparison with any.

There is here for all tastes: delicate little plays of fancy, dark brooding over the eternal riddles of life, a fine scorn for man's weaknesses and a glowing appreciation of his strengths.

Published by Harpers, the book is priced at $2.

Two other books of poetry, just out, are also worth your while. One is "Poems and Sonnets," by the late Ernest Walsh (Harcourt-Brace: $2). Here we have a collection of poems in the modern manner, both as to style and viewpoint. If your taste is conservative, you may not care for them; otherwise, however, you will find them very good stuff in them.

The other is "The Best Poems of 1934," selected by Thomas Moulton (Harcourt-Brace: $2). Most of the well-known names in modern poetry are represented, the choice has been intelligent, and the anthology is a good one.

The Clew of the Forgotten Murder

CHAPTER XI

GRIFF turned to Blocker. "You," he said, "have got your work cut out for you. You have got to get men to locate Frank Bliss, the chauffeur for Mrs. Catha. You men must take Bliss in custody."

"You think it necessary he should be apprehended?" Blocker asked. "I consider it very necessary."

"Then," said Blocker grimly, "it will be apprehended."

He left the criminologist and strode to the telephone booth. While Blocker was telephoning, Griff paced slowly and meditatively up and down the space between the hotel desk and the row of telephone booths.

"That's taken care of," the publisher announced, emerging from the telephone booth. Griff walked to the hotel and said, "To investigate the discovery, which led to Morden's death."

He hailed a taxi at the door. "Monndneck building on Ninth and Central," he said.

As they entered the cab, Griff looked at his watch. "It took 20 minutes to 5 o'clock," he said. "We will probably be able to see the party we want at the office."

Blocker regarded him thoughtfully. "Ninth and Central," he said. "That's where Morden went in the cab."

"Exactly," Griff agreed, "and it was that journey which brought about his death."

"Why?" Blocker asked. "I am not making any guesses," Griff said, "but I would not be surprised if we found that the trail of Mrs. Catha led directly to the office of Edward Shillingby, a private detective."

"The man who was murdered!" Blocker exclaimed.

"Exactly," Griff commented, "and now I want to think. Please don't talk."

He settled back into the cushions and wrapped a cloak of silence about him, a silence which he did not break until the pair stood in the corridor on the fifth floor of the Monndneck building in front of an office marked "Edward Shillingby—Investigations."

Griff opened the door and entered the room.

A young woman, some 23 years of age, with alert brown eyes and quick, nervous mannerisms, looked up from a book of accounts which lay open on a secretarial desk.

"Mr. Shillingby?" Griff asked.

"Mr. Shillingby is dead. I am his secretary. I am winding up his affairs, trying to collect some of his back accounts."

Griff nodded. "Permit me," he said, "to introduce myself. I am Sidney C. Griff, a criminologist."

"I've heard of you," she said.

"The information that I want," Griff said, "is relatively simple and yet quite important."

HE took a picture from his pocket, placed it on the desk directly under the reading lamp.

"You're interested professionally?" she asked.

"Very much so," he said.

"I hope," she told him, "you can do something about it. The police are getting ready to turn Lampson loose. There was only one witness—a man named Decker—and Lampson bribed Decker to fall down on the identification. I think you represented Decker, didn't you?"

"Let's pass that for the moment," Griff said. "Tell me precisely what happened, please."

She started at him for a moment, then said: "Mr. Shillingby was employed to get some information concerning Lampson. He shadowed Lampson. On the night of the murder a gray Cadillac car with the left rear fender dent drove up to the sidewalk and parked. A gangster got out, and approached Mr. Shillingby, fired several shots into his body, jumped in the car and drove away."

"And the witness—Decker?" Griff asked.

"You should know all about Decker," she said. "He was walking along the street a hundred yards or so behind Mr. Shillingby. The man in the gray Cadillac thought at first Decker was the man he wanted. He slowed the car and poked out a gun. Then he realized his mistake and drove on."

"He didn't get out of the machine?"

"No."

"But he did get out of the machine when he killed Mr. Shillingby?"

"Yes, I believe that's right."

that's right, although that hadn't occurred to me before."

"Now then," Griff said, "can you tell me about a Mrs. Blanche Malone?"

"Yes."

"Can you tell us the name of the client?"

"It was," she said, "the Second Security Trust of El Paso, Texas."

"And just what did they want?" he asked.

"They said that Mrs. Malone was connected with an embezzler. They wanted to make certain that certain moneys which she had received did not come from an embezzler."

"And Mr. Shillingby made the investigation and reported to the bank?"

"Yes."

"What did he report?"

"He reported that, apparently, her money came to her as the result of investments which she had made from her savings—very fortunate investments in certain oil stocks."

"Just one more point," Griff said. "And that is about the work that Shillingby was doing when he was killed. He was getting information about Lampson?"

"He was getting it for some other gangster?"

"I didn't think so at the time, but that seems to have been the case."

Abruptly her face lit up. "Now," she said, "I remember where I saw that photograph you showed me."

"The photograph of the man—Morden?" he asked.

"Yes," she said.

"Tell us about it," Griff invited.

"He was in here," she said, "a day or two after Mr. Shillingby's death. He was very much interested in the identity of the man who had employed Mr. Shillingby. He wanted me to describe the man to him."

"And you described him?" asked Griff. "Did you see him?"

"Oh, yes," she said, "I saw him and can describe him. He was . . ."

"Perhaps," he said, "I can save a little time here."

He took another photograph from his pocket and slid it across the desk under the bright rays of light which came from the desk lamp.

"Is that," he asked, "the person who employed Mr. Shillingby?"

"Good heavens, yes!" she exclaimed. "How did you know? Who is it? Tell me, can we get in touch with him?"

Blocker crowded forward, to stare down at the photograph, and then gave a sudden exclamation.

The photograph was that of Frank B. Catha.

Slim Waist Must Be Supple—New Exercise Helps Do It

Artists, beauty authorities and dancing teachers agree that the waistline is the tell-tale of age. As long as it remains slender and supple, a woman needn't worry much about her high fashions. Once it becomes rather stiff or overweight, a smart girl will take immediate steps to get it back in shape if she doesn't want to look old—or older than she is.

A small waistline is desirable, of course. But even more important than actual measurements is whether or not it bends easily, allowing you to walk with a graceful, easy stride. For instance, no matter how old or how young you happen to be, you should be able to lean over and touch the floor with your fingertips, meanwhile keeping the knees perfectly straight. If you can't do it, you'd better start trying right now.

Don't be too strenuous about any exercise. Naturally, if you've neglected your waistline for years, you can't expect to get it back to normal in a few days. You can't touch the floor the first time you try. Or the tenth. Maybe not even the twentieth. Simply lean as far forward as you can. Keep on practicing and after a few weeks, you'll find that you really can reach the floor. Then do it ten times every morning for the rest of your life.

In addition, try this new exercise, created by a famous studio that specializes in reducing and figure-beautifying routines.

Stand erect, arms stretched above your head, palms facing each other. Keeping the backbone straight, lift the left leg outward to the side as far as it will go, swing your body to the left, bending the waistline. Your arms and head will swing over and down, too. Be sure to keep the arms parallel. Reverse, pointing right foot outward to the side and bending the body over toward the right. Repeat twenty times.

Pari-Mutuel May Be Legalized in 1935, Track Owners Believe

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. — (A) — Horse racing is to begin February 22 at Oaklawn Park here, the Hot Springs business men's racing association announced Sunday.

Secretary Douglas Hotchkiss said stables would be opened January 1, and that he already had reservations for 50 stables.

Owner Charles Cella, of St. Louis, is spending $25,000 enlarging and improving the large plant in anticipation of increased patronage over the 28-day meet last spring, the first for Hot Springs in 15 years.

Improvements being made by Cella include a new pari-mutuel system on the second floor of the steam-heated grandstand, indicating sponsors of the meet hope to have that form of betting legalized by the legislature which meets early in January.

Last season, betting was done on the "certificate" plan.

Alabama May Be Rose Bowl Team

Minnesota No. 1 American Team—But Bars Post-Season Games

By ALAN GOULD

Associated Press Sports Editor
NEW YORK—(AP)—Due mainly to a violent outburst of football fratricide in the east, featuring the highly dramatic conquest of Yale's amazing "iron men" over Princeton and including, all told, the abrupt demise of three notable winning streaks, the seemingly irresistible gridiron forces of Minnesota and Alabama stand alone Sunday as the only major college regiments neither beaten nor tied.

The consequence is that Alabama's Crimson Tide now seems the odds-on choice to thunder along to the Rose Bowl and collide with Stanford's powerhouse in the annual New Year's Day intersectional classic, unless some unexpected, eleventh-hour means be found for the Galloping Gophers to hurdle the Big Ten barrier.

Minnesota, by something approaching popular acclaim, remains the nation's No. 1 college football team.

Championship dreams were rudely shattered Saturday for four of the major teams entering Saturday's fray with spotless records, Yale's eleven "iron men," playing the entire game without a substitution, achieved the most startling eastern upset in years by overthrowing Princeton 7 to 0, thereby ending a 15-game winning streak for the Tigers. Syracuse, unable to capitalize its superior power, had its Rose Bowl hopes blasted by Colgate's seventh straight victory over the orange forces, 13 to 7. Navy, outclassed by the mighty Pittsburgh Panthers, came toppling from its high perch to the lopsided tune of 31 to 7. Illinois was knocked from the Big Ten race as well as out of the unbeaten class by a 7-3 comeback victory for Wisconsin, which offers the only remaining barrier to Minnesota.

The day's backwash also engulfed one of the outstanding little fellows from Repulse of Indiana, after a two-year unbeaten march, was upset by Wabash, 7 to 6. And Cornell added to the east's spectacular developments by surging back to trounce Dartmouth, 21 to 6, after losing four straight games.

Only a handful of major teams remains in the race for national championship honors, with Minnesota and Protestants alike are subscribing in its endeavor to elevate the moral tone of the "movies," it will be tragic if the work stops here. The time is now ripe for a revival of decency all along the moral frontier. We need today to pick out the good and magnify it and incorporate it in our lives. Thus we need to crown the true and lovely in our lives, we need to encourage the pure and just in our own minds, and honor them with our daily actions. It is the good that needs to be found, and cherished, and advertised. The evil will no doubt be broadcast without any assistance from us. The pastor said that he was not pleading for a Pollyanna attitude of optimism but a view of life that determined to see life as a whole and then magnify the worthwhile."

The choir, under the direction of Mrs. Ralph Routon, director and organist, presented special music at both services.

Home Clubs

Ozan-St. Paul

The Ozan-St. Paul Home Demonstration club met Friday, November 16, at the home of Mrs. J. W. Gist with an interesting demonstration on baking fruit cake, given by Miss Griffin.

The meeting was called to order by the president who led the opening song "Hark! the Herald Angels Sing." Mrs. Irvin gave a pretty devotional on the birth of Christ, followed with a prayer by Mrs. Goodlett. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Twenty-three members answered the roll call and several visitors were present. Two new members were taken in. Mrs. Ruth Jones and Mrs. Cecil Wallace. Reports were heard from the quorum court committee and the following leaders: four preservation, four preparation, clothing, poultry and home management.

The annual election of club officers was held and the following officers were elected: Mrs. Wilbur Jones, president; Mrs. O. C. Robin, secretary; Mrs. Roy Tollett, reporter; Mrs. Chas. Irvin, recreational leader; Mrs. Chas. Locke, food preservation leader; Mrs. Shirley Stuart, food preparation leader; Mrs. Ben Stuart, clothing leader; Mrs. A. L. Tollett, poultry leader; Mrs. C. K. Osborn, landscape leader; Mrs. Gene Goodlett, gardening leader; Mrs. Cecil Wallace, home management leader. The new membership committee is Mrs. H. A. King and Miss Viola Hanna; program committee is Mrs. J. W. Gist, Mrs. G. S. Smith and Miss Alma Hanna.

It was decided by the club that any member being absent three times in succession without a reasonable excuse be dropped from the roll. The next meeting will be held the third Friday in January at the home of Mrs. Chlora City.

hyetrian pastor, gave the closing prayer.

The subject of the message was "Whatsoever Things are Lovely," with the text found in Phil. 4:8: "Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on those things."

The theme of this sermon was that deeper than evil at the heart of life is good, and that the highest function of religion is to find that good and establish the souls of men in it.

"Paul lived in a world that had enough that was wrong in it. In his writings he tells us often of its evil, but he also found the good and magnified it. We need to find the good in a world where there is so much unlovely. We need today a revival of decency. However successful the Legion of Decency, to which Catholics

Alabama still well out in front as the result of their latest conquests, gained in typically smashing style. While the Gophers were blasting Chicago, 35 to 7, the Crimson Tide rolled over Georgia Tech, 40 to 0, with the aid of a deadly barrage of Howell-Hutson passes. Vanderbilt is now the only obstacle in the path of another Alabama jaunt to the Rose Bowl and it doesn't seem likely the Commodores can check the terrible southern tidal wave.

Stanford and Rice, each dominant so far in their respective zones of combat, loom foremost among the teams that have been tied but not defeated, although Temple, Santa Clara, Louisiana State and the Utah Aggies enjoy the same status in the standing of the major "clubs."

Two former top-ranking teams were tumbled further down the list as Arkansas lost to Southern Methodist, 10-6, and Utah University fell before Colorado Aggies, 14-6.

Pine Bluff Wins Over Little Rock

Zebras, Unbeaten, Take Tigers Into Camp to Tune of 18-7

LITTLE ROCK—In one of the most thrilling games played during the long series that dates back to 1915, Pine Bluff's Zebras, outplayed and out-smarted a battling band of Little Rock Tigers, 18 to 7, at Kavanaugh Field Saturday afternoon. A crowd of approximately 7,000 including a large percentage of Pine Bluff's population, witnessed the classic that kept them on edge for the full 60 minutes. It was a wonderful match between two well drilled teams fighting for move these hazards under state programs, some of years standing.

A survey by the Associated Press disclosed this week-end that at least four states plan to spend more than $1,000,000 each for removal and protection of grade crossings, mostly with federal money. Others have applied to the government for large sums to pursue programs started years ago and paid for with state funds.

Thousands of dangerous crossings throughout the nation have already been made safe or eliminated by the constitution of overhead highways, underpasses and the relocation of roads.

California has abolished 612 crossings at a cost of about $25,000,000 in past years and recently submitted to the federal government a list of 66 crossing projects deemed immediately necessary at a cost of $6,947,000. Iowa, where much progress has been made in recent years toward highway safety, has drafted a $5,000,000 program intended to elevate virtually all dangerous crossings within its borders.

The West Virginia Highway Commission has listed 70 crossings and bridge projects, the work on them dependent on a proposed grant of $5,615,000 in federal funds.

Missouri has 33 railroad grade separations estimated to cost $1,600,000 now under contract or already constructed. Ninety-five per cent of the cost will be paid with federal grants and the rest will be drawn from state funds. An allocation of 4,000,000 from the federal government for additional grade separations and bridge work has been proposed. Missouri had 731 grade crossings in 1921, but only 200 remain as a result of relocations.

the state high school championship. Pine Bluff's tricky offensive was coupled with its usual heads-up football against a dangerous and determined pack of Tigers.

Immediately after the initial kickoff, the Tigers got a break when Bucky Stillman recovered John Craig's fumble on the Pine Bluff 36-yard line. A neat forward from Ed McCully to Garland Beaver and a double lateral from Charley Driver to Bill Dalrymple to McCully placed the ball deep in Pine Bluff territory but Cotton Guice ended the danger when he intercepted McCully's pass.

The first of Pine Bluff's three touchdowns came in the second period when the Zebras capitalized on a fumbled punt recovered on the Tiger 30. This was followed by a 30-yard pass for a touchdown.

Pine Bluff's second touchdown in the third period was manufactured in almost the same way. They recovered a fumbled punt on the Little Rock 32. Several bursts through the tackles and a 10-yard forward lateral took the ball over the Little Rock goal.

Then in the fourth period, Little Rock's belated drive that routed Fort Smith and Searcy the past two weeks, began to function. Taking the ball on their own 10, they mixed a 45-yard pass with power to march 90 yards for a touchdown. It was a mighty exhibition and drew a terrific cheer. But a few minutes later, the tables were turned and the Zebras backs, weaved in and around tackle for 33 yards and a touchdown.

BACKSTAGE in the TELEPHONE SERVICE

THE telephone service this company furnishes you could not be as uniformly good, as quietly accurate, as far-reaching and inexpensive, if the nation-wide organization of the Bell System did not stand behind it.

There is American Telephone and Telegraph Co., the parent organization, furnishing technical and business guidance to the 24 operating companies.

There is Bell Laboratories, the research organization, constantly seeking better and more economical methods and equipment.

There is Western Electric, the supply unit, buying and manufacturing at a cost in most cases below what would be paid in competitive markets.

Each of these units stands behind the men and women who give you your local telephone service. Each is dedicated to the fundamental and enduring Bell System policy of giving good telephone service, at a fair cost to the user.

Back of this policy lies our belief that in an undertaking such as ours, planned for the long run, what is best for the telephone user becomes in the end the course that will bring us the sounder, more enduring success.

Florida to Rival "Rose Bowl" Game

L. S. U. Invited to Meet Some Eastern Opponent, Probably Pittsburgh

MIAMI, Fla.—(AP)—Senator Huey Long was invited by the City Commission Friday to bring the Louisiana State University football team here New Year's Day for an "orange blossom festival" game with an Eastern team, probably the University of Pittsburgh.

The commissioners, however, decided to delay action upon the invitation to the Pittsburgh team until after Saturday's game with Navy.

The intercollegiate contest would be Florida's effort to "capture" some of the national interest in California's Rose Bowl game. The last big football game here was four years ago when Florida played Oregon.

"Citizens of Miami and Florida think a game between L. S. U. and one of the leading Eastern teams will be notable football event in the entire East and South as well as focusing national attention. Please advise by wire if you would be interested in New Year's Day game in Miami."

Laughter Sweeps Trial for Murder

Brunette on Stand Swaps Retorts With Judge on Bench

NEW YORK—The macabre case of the howling, dog murder of a brief spurt into bright drolery in General Sessions Friday when Judge Cornelius F. Collins chose to direct a few satirical darts at Miss Isabelle Cullen, an attractive brunette secretary, who is the state's star witness.

Collins appeared a bit nettled by Miss Cullen's hazy testimony about her condition when she entered Sheridan's apartment December 30 last with the broker and another man. In response to a query as to whether she was not "feeling pretty good," Miss Cullen had replied:

"I wouldn't say I was feeling pretty good. But I wasn't feeling bad."

"Oh, you were all lit, weren't you?" asked Collins.

"I was not," Miss Cullen said indignantly. She added that the drinking had been going on for only two hours. "You can punish a lot of liquor in two hours," observed Collins.

At another point, Collins interrupted to ask:

"What were Sheridan's intentions toward you?"

"I don't know," the brunette replied.

"You're no chicken," said Collins. "You are old enough to know whether a man is courting you."

Miss Cullen, who appears to be in her early 30's, blushed and fumbled with her pearl necklace.

"I suppose he had other women on his staff?" Collins suggested, Miss Cullen said she knew he had many women friends.

"How old was he?" asked the court. "About 65," was the reply.

"H-mm—I guess he was no libertine," mused Collins, setting the court room in a roar of laughter, in which he joined. Even Mrs. Cullen, the telephone, 52, housekeeper on trial, laughed. She is charged with bludgeoning her employer, after whose death his dog howled for 40 minutes over his body.
